Phukchampa Wins Women's Singles Title

Newport Beach, CA (Tennis) -- Sophomore Cartoon Phukchampa of De Anza College won the 2010 CCCAA Women's Tennis Singles Championship on Saturday afternoon. Phukchampa, who won the Northern California title last week, knocked off South #1 Amal Ben El Hadj in the championship match 6-2, 6-3.

Phukchampa beat Anastasia Elseeva of Santa Monica earlier in the day in the semi-final round. Phukchampa made quick work of Elseeva winning 6-1 and 6-2.

In the championship round Phukchampa cruised in the first set. After splitting the opening two games, Phukchampa went on to win four games to take a commanding 5-1 lead, breaking Ben Al Hadj's serve three times in the opening set. Ben Al Hadj finally won on serve in the seventh game, but Phukchampa did the same in the next game to take the first set 6-2.

In the second set, the two players split the opening two games, with each player keeping serve. The two then both took turns breaking each other's serve tying the set up at two games a piece. In the fifth game, Ben El Hadj then regained serve taking a 2-3 lead, but Phukchampa went on a run, winning the final four games of the match to claim the CCCAA State Title 6-3.

Phukchampa will make a bid later in the day to double up on State Titles. Phukchampa will be participating in the Women's Doubles Semi-Finals with partner Diane LuTran at 4:00 PM.
